

Rave Reviews for Kimberley Jochl's Young Adult Novel, Hardly Easy

Read what kids, educators, and influential aviators are saying about Hardly Easy

"Kimberley Jochl inspires the unsuspecting reader through her unique gift of storytelling. In Hardly Easy you find yourself realizing that fear can be a marvelous tool for learning. This young adult novel would be a welcome addition to any library: personal, public, and perhaps most important, various educational libraries." Patricia Anne Denkler, 1st woman to land a jet on a carrier, Beaufort, SC

"I won't spoil the plot too much, because I recommend you read it yourself." Eighth Grade student, New Dimensions Charter School, Morganton, NC

"This clever novel encompasses a great deal of adolescent energy as it rolls from page to page, and when combined with a narrative about learning to fly small aircraft, it becomes a throwback tale of barnstorming itself. Hardly Easy quite literally flies, and you will enjoy your solo." Larry Herrick, Survivor of 43 years in education: English, History and Government Teacher, Independent, Charter and Public Schools in difficult inner-city settings and large suburban institutions, Toas, NM

"It is officially one of my favorite books." Dr. Jacque Boyd, 2020 recipient of the Ninety-Nines Award of Achievement for Contributions to Aviation, Angel Fire, NM

"Every kid, male or female, who ever dreamed of flying or any other pursuit should read Hardly Easy. Not only will they learn something about flying and a bit about skiing they may also learn that things like skin color and sexual orientation do not determine how "good" a person is, all from the point of view of a cool teenager." Len Bugel, 35-year High School Math and Science Teacher, Stratton Mountain

School, South Londonderry, VT

"I am 12 and the story kept me interested from start to finish. I don't normally get tied into books, but this one kept me wanting to read more. I highly recommend it!" Seventh Grade student, Valle Crucis Middle School, Valle Crucis, NC
